As its gas projects in the Gippsland Basin progress, the Board will ensure it has access to people who are suitably credentialed to advise the Board and management as appropriate. Capability in this area has been enhanced with additions to the management and project teams.

The Board aspires to have a Board comprised of individuals diverse in gender, geographic location, culture, background, perspectives and experience and will be mindful of this when making any appointments which will also be based on merit.

A listed entity should disclose:

- (a) the names of the directors considered by the board to be independent directors;

- (c) the length of service of each director.

The Board assesses independence of directors by considering whether a director has any interest, position or association that might influence, or might be perceived to influence, in a material respect, a director's capacity to independently exercise their judgement when acting as a director.

 - employed in an executive capacity by the Company (or a subsidiary);

- has close family ties with any person who falls within any of the categories described above; or
- has been a director of the Company for such a period that his or her independence may have been compromised (to be regularly considered for any director having served more than 10 years), and the Board also considers such other assessment criteria thought appropriate by the Board at the time of making the assessment.

The Board undertakes the independence assessment annually and sets out in the Company's Annual Report (as noted above) whether or not the Board considers a director is independent. While Mr Gordon is considered to not be an independent director due to his performance of an executive role within the last 3 years, the board considers Mr Gordon contributes an independent and well informed perspective which is assessed to be beneficial to its deliberations.

Details of the Company's independent directors, and the length of service of each director, is set out on pages 44 to 45 of the 2017 Annual Report. A copy of the 2017 Annual Report is located at:

From 1 July 2017, the Company has established separate committees for these functions: The Audit Committee and the Risk and Sustainability Committee.
